Can an object that's made to be useful also be beautiful?

The Materials

That's right! They are made with metal from the roll up gates that cover store fronts at night. Usually we walk past these gates without a second thought, but here Roger Ferney-Cortés has put them in the spotlight, inviting people to see them as art.

Imagine

Think about what other items from the city-scape you could transform into art or furniture... (There's space on the back of this page to sketch your ideas!)

The Artist

Roger Ferney-Cortés is an architect, and an artist. He has also taught at the Pratt Institute School of Architecture. His artwork is often inspired by living in a city.

The Artwork

Welcome to Slow Roll.
Roger Ferney-Cortés has transformed everyday objects from the city-scape into furniture and art. Look closely at the chair and sculptures on display. Can you tell what they are made of...?
